High Holy Days at Home

*High Holy Days Are Coming...Shortly!
Get ready to create meaningful celebrations at home.*

In the Time of COVID This year, more families than ever will be celebrating the High Holy Days as families at home. You can have a short, family-centered service at home with the prayer books shown below. Add more fun with shofarot for all: the real kind, toy (plastic) and plush for the youngest ones. Learn how to make your own shofar blasts with Easy Shofar Blowing. Get our beautiful candles to cast the proper light over your table.

In the Torah, it says that we should mark the first day of the seventh month with a complete rest commemorated with loud blasts. These blasts, or teruah, were assumed by the rabbis to be blasts of the shofar. (Leviticus 23:24) It is the sound that reminds God of Abraham's sacrifice that He might also be mindful of us. Its announces God's presence and ushers Him into our space as we celebrate Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.

We've marked down all shofar items: real and play shofarot, books, and crafts.

Here are just a few of the items you won't want to pass up:
