

Huge Loss for NYC: Abigael's will not reopen, but catering & MSG Concession will remain

May 18, 2020 Add Comment Dani Klein 2 Min Read

For over 25 years, Abigael's by Jeff Nathan, located in the heart of Broadway between Times Square and Herald Square, has wowed diners in style. Today, they decided to close the restaurant's doors permanently.

Between the expiring lease and COVID-19's toll on restaurants (particularly high-end restaurants like Abigael's), the restaurant was not able to keep the in-house seating part of the business viable moving forward, unfortunately. The restaurant was a mainstay over the year for dates, business meals, sheva brachot, and more.

We're seeing high-end restaurants are struggling during the COVID-19 crisis more than fast food eateries, due to the nature of their pricing, style of cuisine, and to-go options. After the loss of Wolf &